

Saving
Britain's
Wildlife

Mammal Society

Honorary Treasurer Vacancy, March 2021

Based: Home (Quarterly Council meetings in London or Online)

Deadline: 30 April 2021

The Mammal Society, established in 1954, is a UK wide charity advocating science-led mammal conservation.

One in four of our native mammals is threatened with extinction, and many others are in decline. With Britain now recognised as one of the most nature-depleted countries in the world, urgent action is needed. We are working to give our wildlife a better future by:

1. Keeping a constant watch on the conservation status of our mammals and making this information freely available.
2. Making conservation more effective by providing guidance on what to do and where to do it.
3. Educating the public and professionals about wild mammals, training people to survey them, and sharing the latest research.
4. Working in partnership to restore native mammal populations and re-establish functional ecosystems.

Our current treasurer is due to retire later this year. We are looking for a replacement to work with fellow trustees, share our passion for British wildlife and contribute to their conservation.

We are seeking someone with the right skills, experience, commitment and enthusiasm to join our friendly team as Honorary Treasurer to:

- Lead and advise fellow Trustees on finance.
- Manage the charity's finances effectively and efficiently.
- Be part of a charity that is working to save British wildlife.
- Be part of the development of a charity whose beneficiaries' need is greater than ever.

We do require any applicants to be qualified accountants, preferably with some experience of working in the charity sector.

Information on our activities; trustees, staff and latest published accounts can be found on our website: www.mammal.org.uk
